Date: For immediate release

June 2006

Brooke North Announces Major Technology Investment

Leeds based solicitors Brooke North LLP are online to improve client services after investing in a state-of-the-art software system from emis intellectual technology.

The law firm has unveiled the Seneca CM system which incorporates case management, digital dictation and practice management in one fully integrated package.

The system, which went live this month, permeates all activities storing all correspondence, emails and notes digitally.

The new IT system helps the firm meet its quality standards as well as offering the facility for lawyers to work from home and client premises.

The system was supplied by emis intellectual technology, a subsidiary of EMIS, the leading IT provider to the NHS Primary Healthcare market.

Chris Spencer, development director at emis intellectual technology, says:

“Having a simple-to-use and completely integrated contact, file, activity and practice management system helps solicitors concentrate fully on the needs of their clients by minimising the administration time involved with a practice’s processes.”
