Arcscotts choose emisit's Seneca CM as contact file and activity management system

Established Hove-based law firm Arcscotts have chosen a flexible contact, file and activity management system to help them maintain and ensure further growth. This procurement is part of the firms' expansion and growth plans which have included the opening of a Shoreham office in March of this year.

Andrew Stenning, Partner comments "The time came for us to ensure that we could secure our growth with the implementation of an easy to use and adopt system that would enable us to implement the necessary procedures and maintain our client service levels"

The software will allow the lawyers at the firm to increase the speed with which they can attend to client's enquiries, achieve the very highest levels of efficiency in their document handling, and also give those that instruct them the opportunity to follow the progress of their matter on-line.

Emis have also been brought on-board to help Arcscotts hit the ground running when the law regarding home-moves changes with the introduction of Home Information Packs next June.

Arcscotts carried out extensive research into the market with emis having beaten off stiff competition from three other suppliers. Andy Stenning comments "emis were the last supplier that we met with but we knew straight away that Seneca CM was right for us
